to stage manage a show.

In my opinion, probably the most important thing we do as an organization here at the Actors Guild is support our youth theatre educational program. Guild Builders was started over 20 years ago and has grown and grown ever since. Since the first production, Cecilia and the Blue Mountain Boy in 1998, dozens of children from the fourth to the ninth grades have attended classes in all phases of theatre. Not only do we teach acting and movement, we also teach them about technical theatre, such as how to run lights and sound or

When the program first started we were limited on the number of kids we could accommodate in each year's program. Waiting lists grew and, unfortunately, a number of children were never able to participate. Three years ago we decided to redesign the program, so that not only those who took the classes, but anyone in that age group could audition for our main stage production. As a result, there are some 60 kids in tonight's production of Madagascar JR.!

We also realized that there were a number of teens who aged out of the program but were still wanting to stay together and do shows. So, with the reorganization, began our Guild Builders Teen Program. Just as with the younger kids, the teens brought in their friends, who brought in their friends, and in three short years we now have around 25 teens involved on a regular basis. If you missed their production of Sweeney Todd in October, you missed one heck of a good show!

The idea behind Guild Builders has always been to develop the talents of young people, and, as the name implies, hope that they will use those talents, and continue to audition and be a part of our organization as they grow older. We have been so fortunate that this has happened over and over again. And the skills that this program "builds" stay with these young people for life. Regardless of what path life takes them, the self-confidence and ability to communicate with ease are valuable tools.

But I bet if you asked any one of them, they would say the most valuable thing they have gotten out of this program is friendship. And I'm sure that will be very evident as you watch Madagascar JR. tonight. Enjoy the show!

Director's Note

Madagascar JR. is a show about lasting friendships and how no matter what your friends are always there for you. That message has rang true for me throughout this production process, in so many ways. Our creative team reminds me a lot of these zany zoo animals, we are more than a team of individuals who come together to work on theater productions. We are a family. A family that supports one another in the good times and the bad. We have celebrated many of life's milestones together, picked each other up through many bumps in the road and there is no doubt in my mind that we will be there to share many more together.

One thing that I like to do with each cast is ask them, "Why are you here, what made you want to audition, what do you hope to get out of this experience?" For those who have been involved they will tell you, they found their place, their family, that's not their family. For those starting out, they say, "they want to find some place where they feel like they belong." I feel like our team, does a great job at making this happen for the kids in this program. I don't think it's something that we intentionally set out to do, but something that happens because of our friendships. I guess maybe something they see us put in to practice. I love that we all get the opportunity to introduce these kids to something that has played such an important part in the shaping of our lives. I am thankful that I get the opportunity to do it with friends, who I consider family. I look forward to sharing this experience with you, and I welcome you to the family.

Opening in February

Jane Austen's beloved novel follows the fortunes (and misfortunes) of the Dashwood sisters—sensible Elinor and hypersensitive Marianne—after their father's sudden death leaves them financially destitute and socially vulnerable. Set in gossipy late 18th-century England, the play is full of humor, emotional depth, and bold theatricality. Sense and Sensibility examines our reactions, both reasonable and ridiculous, to societal pressures. When reputation is everything, how do you follow your heart?
